OVERDOSE OF MEDICINE

Caused Death of Arthur Wood-Took New York Doctor's Prescription for

Arthur Wood, 70, who came from New York a few months ago to make his home with his son on the Back road in Windham, died at his home Thursday morning, as the result of an overdess of a medicine containing optium. In the absence of Dr. Mason, local examiner, Coroner A. G. Bill of Danielson was called up and gave permission for the removal of the body, after ascertaining the facts from Dr. R. C. White, who attended Mr. Wood. The deceased was living with his son, who until the recent strike at the Vanderman Manufacturing company was employed by that concern. Lately

He had been troubled with severe headaches for some time, and the med-icine he was in the habit of using was prescribed for him by a New York physician whom he formerly em-ployed. Wednesday morning Mr. Wood was working in the yard was working in the yard, and went into the house to get some of the med-icine. Later his daughter-in-law came upon him asleep. She was not alarm-ed at first, but upon discovering that he was unconscious at once notified Dr. White, who found the man in bad shape. All efforts failed to restore his ball be fixed at $25,000.

Judge George F. Brown of the superior court held, however, that $10,000 was sufficient. The amount was furnished by James M. Finan, a retired business man, Robert Jones, an undertaker, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene F. Gifford, neighbors of Mrs. Mohr's, and Arthur Cushing, one of Mrs. Mohr's counsel. Mrs. Mohr, who maintained her composure throughout the pro-To substantiate their claim that the her composure throughout the pro-ceedings, was driven soon afterwards to the house where she boarded with her three children near the late home of her husband.

Denial of Charges.

The only statement obtained from Mrs. Mohr during the day was a denial of the charges against her. When confronted with Cecil Victor Brown, the former hostler on the Mohr estate, whose confession led to her arrest, she said:
"It is not so. You know you came up to my house and said that you were going to get square with the doctor because he did not pay you what he owed you. I told you not to be foolish."

Three Charged With Murder. Brown, with his two alleged complices, Henry Spellman, his is brother and George W. At the Rhode Island hospital, where Miss Eurger is kept in seclusion, it was said she was recovering from her two

Even the court proceedings leading up to the release of Mrs. Mohr furnished dramatic features to a case al-ready crowded with startling developments.

Promptly at the hour named by Judge Brown for the hearing, Mrs. Mohr appeared in the superior court accompanied by her counsel, bondsmen and a crowd of newspapermen. Her counsel, Arthur Cushing, told the court that he was prepared to furnish bail of $10,000, which he believed the court would find sufficient.

Assistant District Attorney Beach interposed an objection, naming $25,000 as the proper amount but he was overruled by Judge Brown, who said:

Bond Placed at $10,000.

"Mrs. Mohr is not a transient. She has interests in Providence, is a permanent resident here and I think that $10,000 is quite sufficient."

When Mr. Beach, taking advantage of the law passed by the legislature requiring an examination of the property holdings of bondsmen, found that the combined holdings of Finan, Jones and the Giffords would not cover the bond, there was a hush in the er the bond, there was a hush in the brilliantly lighted chamber. Mrs. Mohr glanced quietly from one face to another in the circle about her. Finally her gaze rested on her counties his house nd some lots recently willed to him by his mother. District Attorney Beach rapidly figured pp the vale of the holdings from a tax book. Then facing Mrs. Mohr, who was watching him intently, he nodded his head and annonced that the sureties were now ample with $300 to Everybody crowded about Mrs. Mohr with congratulations, but a way was quickly cleared for her and she was taken to the nearby offices of her counsel, where she consented to pose for photographers. Too Tired to Talk,

To all requests for statements re-fusals were given. Mr. Cushing said that his client was too tired to talk and that he had been too busy trying to get bail to become thoroughly acquainted with her story.

Notwithstanding the sensational disclosures of the three negroes that they had agreed with Mrs. Mohr for $5,000 to kill her husband, and that the smallest details of the ambush had been carefully gone over, little surprise was felt at her release. The circumstances regarding her separation from her husband had become well known through the court proceedings in connection with her sult for separation, which is still pending and against the doctor by Mrs. Mohr's maid. Dr. Mohr was found "probably guilty" of this charge in a lower court but was acquitted when he carried motive for the alleged implication of Mrs. Mohr in the death plot was due to jealousy the police gave out a letto jealousy the police gave out a letter written by her to a brother-in-law of Miss Burger's, the doctor's secretary. In this letter the writer gave warning that if his sister "dares to go to my Newport home she will never come out alive. She will have a sad ending if she keeps on against me."

For some time Mrs. Mohr had not been living with her husband. With her two children she had taken up a residence nearly opposite the doctor's home, in the Elmwood district. Yesterday she was appointed trustee of terday she was appointed trustee of the doctor's property, by her own re-quest, but this trust she voluntarily quest, but this trust she voluntarily resigned today and the court appointed her attorney, Mr. Cushing, in her place. Mrs. Mohr took this step when Charles M. Mohr, of New York, a son of Dr. Mohr by a former marriage, petitioned for an annulment of her appointment. When Mr. Cushing opened the doctor's strong box he said he found no will, only a crudely prepared memorandum which was apparently the draft of a will, but that it was not in legal form.

Mrs. Mohr Remained Calm.

Throughout her trying ordeals to-day, Mrs. Mohr remained calm. At 5 o'clock in the morning she was aroused by police officers and confront-ed by the confessions which had been secured separately from her three al-leged accomplices. She entered an emphatic denial as each confession was read to her and she repeated this deread to her and she repeated this de-nial when the three men who were brought before her declared that their stories were true.

Late tonight it was learned that Mrs. Mohr would attend the funeral of her husband, which will be held tomorrow noon. The services according to the funeral notice will be private. All the arrangements, it is understood, have been made by Mrs. Mohr personally.
